

ODLO develops, manufactures and sells functional sportswear and is the European market leader in the field of functional underwear. ODLO International AG is looking for (to start immediately or by arrangement) a

PLM System Manager

In this varied role you will be responsible for optimising and further developing the new Product Lifecycle Management (PLM) system. As PLM key user you belong to the Product Management & Design department and build the interface to Product Engineering, Supply Chain, Sales and the IT department. In addition it will be your task to train employees and to implement continuous improvements to the processes and the system. The ensuring of the data consistency and in general of the product master data will also be your responsibility.

To meet the demands of this interesting role, you have had basic business management resp. commercial training or you are educated in the field of clothing engineering. You have several years of professional experience in the field of clothing, a flair for structured process thinking and a strong affinity for IT. In addition you like taking challenges, you are accustomed to working independently and accurately and you have good communication skills. You also have a very good level of written and spoken fluency in English, German is of advantage.

We can offer you an exciting working environment in the world of sport. Interested? Then send us your completed application – we look forward to receiving it.

ODLO International AG

Ms Cécile Banz, Bösch 47, CH-6331 Hünenberg
Tel.: + 41 41 785 04 09, e-mail: recruiting@odlo.com
www.odlo.com

